

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

MANY text books have from time to time been presented to the public,—but none of a nature entirely similar to the one now offered; and for this reason—that the texts are not arranged according to any particular plan or system whatever, but have merely been thus collated from time to time, as they have seemed to strike the mind as answering to each other, while reading the sacred Scriptures. Thus the idea that is intended to be conveyed by the corresponding text is sometimes a fuller carrying out, or an enlargement of the one contained in the first text : sometimes it is a little climax. In other couplets, the two texts are intended to be in direct opposition to each other, and so bringing out more fully the meaning and force of both. Thus, in No. 16, the idea intended to be conveyed is, that the words "MY Father and YOUR Father" may be understood to express what is meant by the words "OUR Father" in the Lord's prayer, thus proving that "both He that sanctifieth and they who are sanctified are all of one ; for which cause He is not ashamed to call them brethren." In No. 88, a climax is intended to be understood : not only shall the overcomer come to HIS SEAT, but more than that, shall sit on HIS THRONE ; and so Nos. 47, 90, 91, 122, and others. Again, in No. 217 a complete opposition of idea is intended—that Israel should not "bring forth FRUIT UNTO HIMSELF," but that Israel should bring forth "fruit unto HOLINESS."

In some couplets doctrine is intended to be set forth, as Nos. 27, 36, 37, &c., while in others the texts thus collated will be found to contain an interchange between Christ and the believer, as No. 58, &c.

These few explanations have seemed necessary, because the writer has found that the line of thought in her own mind which induced her thus to collate some of the texts, not having been the exact line of thought in the mind of another while reading them, some have been misunderstood, or rather, have not fully conveyed the idea intended to be conveyed by them. The words that are printed in large type are those intended to be in apposition, and thus serve to bring out the full force of the couplet; and if there be some, the meaning and connection of which do not immediately appear, it will be found a most profitable exercise of the soul to meditate upon them, until they are discovered. But after all, a spiritually enlightened mind will be found by far the best key to unlock any difficulties which might present themselves to the minds of others.

These texts were not collated, originally, with any view to publication; but are now presented to the public through the earnest request of many individuals, who are most anxious to possess a copy.

ADDRESS TO THE READER.

DEAR CHRISTIAN READER,—In this little book thou art presented with the pure Word of God, without any admixture whatever. It is the earnest wish of her who has thus collated these texts, that thou mayest, through them, find “thy meditation of Him to be sweet,” who “is the chiefest among ten thousand, and the altogether lovely.” May they be the means of leading thee to a greater appreciation than ever of the Sacred Scriptures, and of Him of whom they testify. May they be the daily food of thy soul, the constant companion of thy walks, and the exceeding comfort of thy sick chamber ; and by daily meditating upon them as they stand thus collated and connected, may they lead thee to closer and closer communion with Him who is thy present joy, and thine Everlasting Portion.
